I have sent you the watch exactly how I received it (plus the service and repair)

The number of links attached to the watch that I sent to you is the number that I acquired from the sale

Ok, so this is how this is going to go right?
Tell me something else, did you or didnt you receive spare endlinks that come with all the watches bought?

George the only way you will reach an outcome is through the ticket system

I recommend you file it.

If the moderators deem that $200 is the right amount to be compensated I will send you $200.00

Also, so that you know. SEL stands for Stainless End Link and refers to the links at the end of the bracelet. Your image is of the pearl

I have not called you a liar

I will not answer calls or txt messages from you

I will reply promptly and honestly to the mods and promise to be reasonable no matter how you chose to behave yourself

Where do the springbars help in this situation?
Couple of times in an out of a shirt will most likely tear the little pearl off.

George I would like to use the Ticket System. Many of the things you outlined I do not understand, they make me uncomfortable and I have no idea what you mean by "little SEL" and how it can be epoxied to the watch as this is what the spring bars are for.

Ok look, maybe 200$ was too much i wasnt thinking straight because i was a little bit mad. I havent ask you to give the watch for free, i know you sent it for repairs and that cost you some, but i payed the full amount you asked me. You know how global trade is, you cant always win you sometimes lose. With that being said, i know you understand all of the things i told you and what is wrong with the watch. Too many things can go wrong, i just spotted the little SEL is epoxied to the watch, and from the 12 hour mark, the epoxy isnt well so it might get unstuck at any point. If you want me to file a ticket with the forum, this is ok with me, but it will only take more time and frustration for both of us. Please note that this is not an attempt to get the watch any cheaper, this is damage control, as i cannot sell it back for the amount i bought it or a little bit less.

Would you consider 150$ as a settlement or you want me to file the complain?

Look George; I'm a reasonable man and I'm true to my word but I assessed the loss I made on this sale and the amount you ask for, you want me to give away this watch for free. I will need for you to file the helpdesk ticket because I find none of the requests reasonable or even workable - Some of the things you have said in your emails today are contrary to the way I assessed the watch when I have sent it to you - others do not make any sense

What I will promise to you is that I will follow through with the decision of the moderators

Regards

Niko

Look ideally i would like a full refund and send you the watch back, but that will take a month or more. I am not accusing you of anything, other than maybe you knew the bezel wasnt unidirectional and that it was not clicking right. So with that being said i see 2 solutions which will result in a positive feedback from me to you.
You either refund me 200$, or you make another ad for the watch, you sell it and when it sells you pay me up, and i ship to anywhere from europe. I cannot see another solution to that.

Okay mate. To say the least I am more than a little taken back by the list of complaints - I wont accuse of you of anything but I'm going to need to get the mods involved here because some of them I am concerned about. What I will say is that I have paid almost an identical amount of money for this watch; when I bought it, it arrived in a broken state and I had it serviced for $150 prior to selling it to you. I only wore it 4-5 times. Sit tight and I'm hopeful with the help of the staff at RWI we can reach an agreement that will be fair

Plus, you didnt get any more endlinks from the previous deal? It is almost too tight..

On Wednesday, 24 August 2016, George Asvestas <seddra@gmail.com> wrote:

I wouldnt say the watch is this good as you described mate. First of all, the bezel isnt unidirectional, the gear counter clockwise is broken, twists only one way around. Lec isnt aligned either, the gear of when you wind the watch is at his end and will not wind the watch easily. I would have to say it is not a quality replica, and your watchsmith wasnt that good.

Damn i was so excited about this, now i am totally sad. For the state the watch is in, i would have have payed 180-200$.

I am sorry mate i aint satisfied.
